The natural sway of crane payloads is detrimental to safe and efficient operation. Cranes with two frequencies are very difficult to control.

Two-mode input shapers were tested on a double-pendulum bridge crane.

To test the compatibility of the two-mode controller with human operators, tests were performed using a 10-ton industrial crane at Georgia Tech.